

Easy Access Trail at Ham Hill Country Park

Ham Hill rises high above the surrounding countryside with sweeping views across Somerset - the perfect place to picnic, walk and enjoy nature. Animals, birds, insects and plants thrive in the woodlands and limestone grasslands, including skylarks and bee orchids. Ham Stone has been quarried here since Roman times and there are still active quarries today.

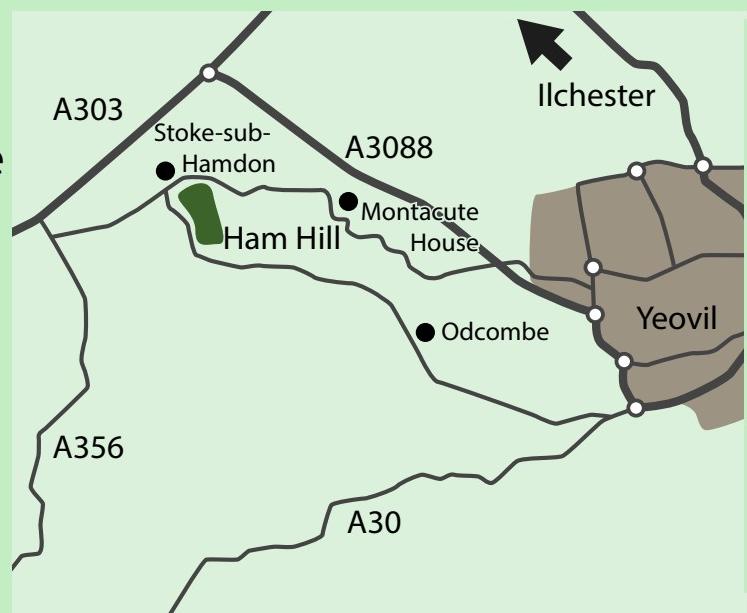

Visitors can explore this diverse landscape on a network of public footpaths and bridleways.

Ham Hill Gallery

To help you enjoy your visit...

Ham Hill Country Park has the largest Iron Age Hill Fort in Europe and is a scheduled ancient monument. The main habitat along the route is limestone grassland.

Site information

There are public toilets, including Radar key accessible toilet, at the Ranger Centre and a wheelchair accessible picnic and BBQ area next to the Ranger Centre, with stone plinths to hold disposable BBQs.

Please put litter in the bins or take it home. Livestock graze across the site. Dogs must be kept under control and on a lead as directed by posters on gates. Please clean up after your dog and use the dog waste bins.

The Countryside Rangers

- The Rangers provide events and activities to help people discover more about the country park's wildlife and heritage.
- A team of volunteers help the Rangers manage the country park on a weekly basis by carrying out practical conservation tasks, litter-picking and wildlife surveys. New volunteers are always welcome.
